

SUNDAY NIGHT...

The code is still running...

My whole weekend had been used for data preprocessing and data exploration.... No matter how much I will finish tonight, tomorrow, there is still endless work...

Sometimes I really, really hate data exploration for giant customer, especially when you need to check multiple customers.

Mastercard only made things worse at this moment. Lync cannot be used at all during these days. I called their customer service today, the problem wasn't solved, which means I have to wait for hard token to be delivered, so that I would be able to login Lync.... But Mastercard is very slow on almost everything.... When work is boring and busy, cannot see baby Emmanuel at all. Could you imagine how miserable every minute can be?

The new office is also horrible! I wanted to complain for a while. Having so many people on the same floor, the bathroom is very small, and there is no perfume for the bathroom. Not sure why, how come sometimes the bathroom smells so bad that you just want to kill yourself! The coffee machine which had been broken 3 times within 2 weeks is also a joke. The code is still running..... No!!!