

PRESSURE

I got up very late again this morning because I was too tired. This is normal every month for women. This week, it became the source of my pressure.

I wanted to get up early and get to the office earlier, so that I could see baby Emmanuel through Lync. It's just, could not wake up at all. Then when I got up, very strong sense of guilty came to my mind.

Same for my side projects. Definitely love baby Emmanuel and want to do more My Baby Cat project. Right now it's the end of the year and I'm so busy. Meanwhile there are many things need to learn in data science. Sometimes, if I got no chance to touch My Baby Cat project for a while, that sense of guilty came again.

Maybe writing it down will feel better. I love baby Emmanuel, and hope this love will last for a very long time while my career development is also good.