

NEED A GOOD REST

Recently, work really made me busy and feel exhausted. Although always told parents that I'm going to work slower and do less, so that I can take a rest sometime. When the opportunity really came, all what I am doing is working harder and grab the opportunities.

This time, it's the collaboration with production team. I really want to go through the whole process till we deploy the model to production. My manager agreed my request immediately today and production project manager started to contact me. In order to do this project well, this weekend, have to work more to deliver the results for current most urgent project.

Sometimes, the most urgent project may earn more money for the company but just need lower level skills. Less urgent project may earn less money but will gain precious experience.

I, want them both.