

Had so much fun today!

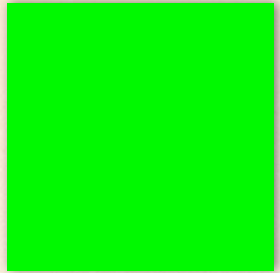

We played laser tag!

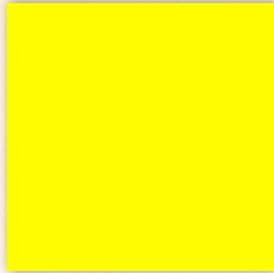

And I played 3 rounds with many others!

Chatting with others during the lunch was also lots of fun!

VS

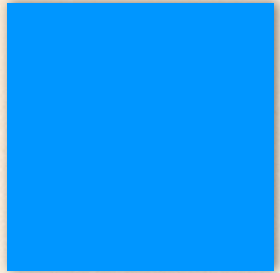

I was not belong to the first round, but someone said if you want to practice, you should join, so I thought that's for practice purpose, and joined the green team. Who knows that's a real game.

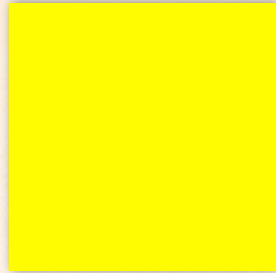

But learned most of the tricks in this round.

At the very beginning, I was holding the gun in the opposite direction, therefore could not shoot anyone, until my teammate told me how to hold the gun....

Then I entered into the offensive mode, running towards the enemies and trying to kill more of them, because that's the way you get higher chance to win more points. Finally we won! And I got familiar with the 3 floors, as well as how to shoot others, where to hide, etc.

VS

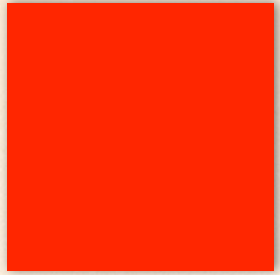

This was my real round.

This time I became much more familiar with the game, offensive all the time, killed lots of them. And at the very beginning of this game, I have learned that the gun can be unclipped, so that you will have more flexibility. Can't believe that my gun was clipped in the first round, no wonder it was hard for me to hold it.

We won in this round! Our points were far higher than theirs! I was in blue team this round, BTW.

Maybe it's because most of them were hiding, but lots of people in our team were in offensive mode.

It was fun!

VS

This was the extra round. After everyone has played the game, they have one more round to let those who're interested in the game to keep playing!

This one was the most fun one, even though our team lost. Most of the people in this round are offensive, therefore we had much more running and chasing, so much laughter!

One of the blue team members (well, that was Eric) was wearing 2 jackets and got 2 guns, one of those jackets is for birthday special that this person can only be killed once in every 5 hits... No wonder when I have already targeted him, he never died... Finally every time when I saw him, I just ran away, ran far away...

I also like the teamwork this time. Every time when I run into blue team area, thought I would be killed by lots of them, but immediately saw red team teammates came here, we were shooting them together. So it was so joyful!