

AT HOME

Today is the third day at home. Pretty cold here.

Yesterday, I was outside, walked a lot with my parents. When we got into the subway station, mom suddenly asked us to wait there and she walked towards the exit. Dad said, people at my mom's age can enjoy some discount, that if they will use the transit card more than twice within 2 hours, then they can travel to wherever they want for free that day. 2 minutes later, mom entered again, that smile filled with satisfaction, just made me feel funny.

Yesterday, we also went to a restaurant they used to like, ordered lots of food. When I was ordering the fried noodles, the images appeared in my mind was those fried noodles in Ding Tai Feng.... Having forgot the real fried noodles in my hometown. Finally, none of us wanted to have a second taste of that noodles. Dad didn't want to waste the food and he was still hungry, so he finished the noodles. Normally he could still eat a lot during the dinner time, but after having the noodles, he lost all the appetite. And I decided not to eat out here any more.

AT HOME

There is a very famous bridge in my downtown. 2 years ago, the bridge had been closed for maintenance. On the day when I returned back, it opened again and in the initial 3 days, people are allowed to walk on the bridge. My family planned to do that walk too. But after we saw the photos taken by my aunt, we canceled the plan. This is not to see the bridge, it's to see the people... People mountain people sea.

Uncle entered into his 66 years old this year. To Chinese people, this is a lucky number. So I bought some chocolate for him as the gift. Although the chocolate is famous, it's just a small box, my uncle returned a much box filled with food to appreciate me. Wow, I have never seen anyone brought such a large food box to my home. The food uncle made is really great. Mom said, he learned cooking from a famous Shanghai chief in recent years.

AT HOME

Love mom's home made most. They don't look that pretty as what people post in their instagram, but these food are most healthy and delicious.

Yesterday we bought those vegetarian "beef" (those black pieces), they made by tofu, very tasty, made by a muslim restaurant.

Noodles made by chicken soup, porridge with black rice are also pretty good. Love the food at home!
