

Too Much From the Screen

I know my curiosity often leads me to ask why and find answers after a news, a TV show, a movie, etc.

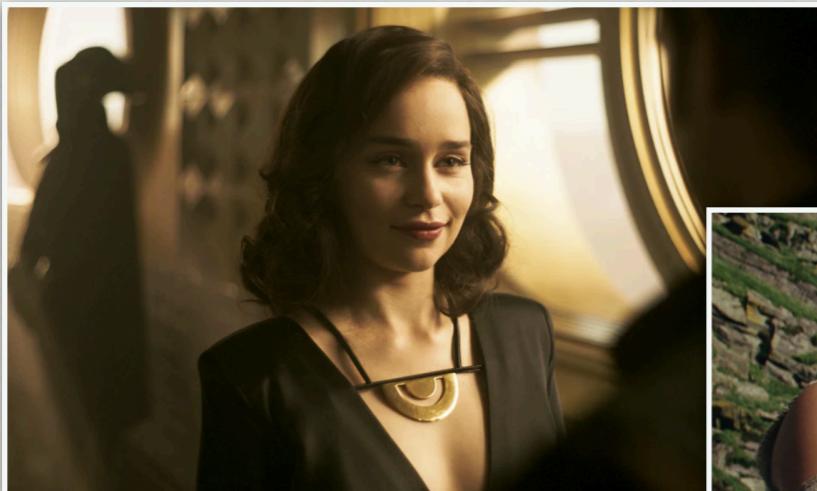

This weekend, I just did too much “research”....

The entertainment world is doing an amazing job, it simply attracts people like me to watch one after another....

Solo - A Star Wars Story

I haven't watched any movie for a while, since I'm think recent movies looked the same. But this Friday, I decided to watch Solo, even though Last Jedi disappointed me a lot.

It is the right choice. Star Wars is still the movie that drives me to explore a lot about the stories and the history behind. Right after the movie, I started to check whether Qi'ra is Rey's mom, Darth Maul in underworld, as well as the timeline and character ages.

Anthony Bourdain

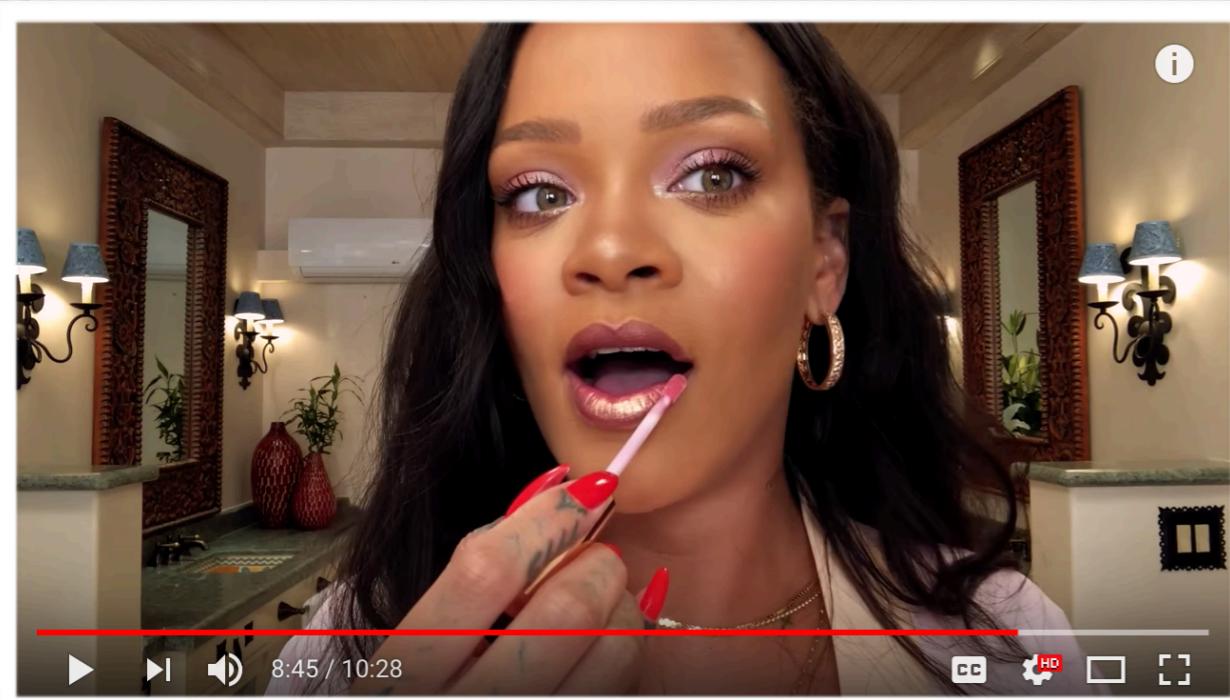

I'm not an American and this is my first time to hear his name in the news, after he just committed suicide. My curiosity drove me to explore more again, because I love food & travel TV shows. Have to admit, Anthony is a fantastic story teller!

The very first video I chose was Unknown Parts - Iran. It's amazing. Similar to the best type of food & travel shows, he was showing traditional cuisine, culture and the interaction with local people. But his story telling started with the history of the conflicts between Iran and some western countries. Even when he was eating with the local people, some were talking about politics. It really is "a deeply confusing, heartbreakingly beautiful country".

Rihanna's Makeup

Recently, you can see Ocean's 8 related videos everywhere. It is in my to-watch list! I saw a few interviews with some women in the movie, but rarely saw Rihanna was among them. So I tried to search videos about Rihanna and Ocean's 8. By accident, I saw her makeup tutorial. Although I haven't used any makeup more than 3 years. Sometimes, it's still funny to see how these celebrities do makeup. I'm especially interested Rihanna's personality.

It is an amazing tutorial. She really applied so much layers on her face and even shoulder. And she got excited when she's doing these.

I like her personality.

Too Much From the Screen

Guess the reason I wrote down all these is because I somewhat feel guilty towards the time I spent on today's entertainment research. Although this is just part of me :)

Still want to write them down, because sometimes, when I looked back at those things I did in the past, no matter it's work related or entertainment related, I was surprised by the memories I had, and it's always sweet.

Time to back to my normal life.