

游子吟

I was looking for videos that can relax for a while, suddenly found a new Chinese animation.

游子吟

游子吟

The story started in a wealthy family, children were playing at hide and seek, and by accident, they found a worn-out cotton-padded jacket. Not sure how come such a clothes could appear at their home.

Then their dad came in, saw the clothes, and decided to tell his children a story....

游子吟

Tonight, while he is studying, his mom is making him a good meal, since tomorrow, he has to attend an exam which could decide whether he would have an opportunity to study in a better environment.

Many years ago, this boy was very poor and therefore always got bullied. All the children looked down upon him.

and the sky printed out all the knowledge he learned from the books.

At night, in his dream, he dropped into paradise where the floor is made of warm and soft cotton,

When he woke up, his mom put a new winter clothes in his hand, he felt so excited!

But within a second, he has realized, that his mom made the new clothes at night and didn't go to sleep the whole night....

With the new winter clothes, he no longer feel cold at more.

Finally, that boy passed selection exams one by one and finally became an important government official, living in a wealthy life, contributing his talent and knowledge for the country.

From this dinner, all the children in this wealthy family started to treat their mom even better.

An old winter clothes lying in an old box , folded well.

It is Chinese culture, started from ancient time, that the country will hold national exams to select very smart people. Children have to work very hard from a very young age, just in order to rank top in the exams so that they can enter into a higher level and get a better opportunity to study. Finally, finally, the most excellent people will be selected to national government and serve for the whole country. Of course, these government officials are wealthy. So many of them in our history are amazingly talented.

Till now, the competition, the exam format in China is still similar to what's happening in ancient time. Let's skip whether this is a good selection method here.

I just love this type of story. No matter how many times this type of stories repeat in history, in current time and in the future.

游子吟

游子吟， it is an ancient poem, meaning “singing by those travelers”. In ancient time, students have to travel for a long distance to attend national exams, and it takes very long time before they could return back home.

The poem depicts the moment, when a child is leaving for the national exam, his mom is trying to make the clothes stronger, just in case her child will return back late. Children’s love is like the grass on the ground, how could they pay back mom’s love?
