He has a girlfriend.... Vicky told me today....

The good news is, at least, now I can behave normally in front of him.

Not sure how to describe my current feelings. Not sure how long it will take to get rid of this type of feeling. After Emmanuel totally left my life in 2017, it's been 2+ years that I had never got interested in any man. I thought no one could replace Emmanuel's position in my heart, and therefore when Tanner appeared I thought he must be someone very special. Because no one had ever made me feel heart beating from 2016.

When I just saw Tanner, everyday was so happy, even challenges in the work became pleasant. How I wish that I could be his friend, knowing him more. Maybe I really misunderstood his behavior before his vacation in February. Then his long time disappearance did upset me, and I asked Vicky about him. Who knows, Vicky asked someone else whether Tanner was single... After he returned back from his vacation, everything changed, his behavior was so weird. Gradually, gradually, not sure why, I could no longer smile in front of him, no longer felt natural in front of him. My emotion became unstable and even started to lose myself.

Now, it's time to be the real me.

Really appreciate Tanner's appearance, he made me totally got rid of my feelings towards Emmanuel and started to ask myself, what do I really want in my life. How I wish Tanner can be a friend.

Long time ago, my first impression about him was in that biometrics company lunch. On that table, the food came late, he was the only one who ordered the appetizer. I was so hungry and he shared the chicken with everyone on that table. That moment, his smile was so natural. I thought he must be a very kind person.

The second impression about him was, one day, the door of the elevator just opened, I mistakenly recognized him as Mark and said "Hi", he replied with "Hi" with smile, wow, at that moment, I just realized he has a very nice smile.

There were a few times saw him, always saw his smile. All the impression about him was so positive and filled with sunshine.

But, everything changed, after Vicky asked that question...

I just wanted to know him more, wanted to have I more friend who can chat with me in the kitchen during lunch time. I did wish he could be my boyfriend, but thought just let it be.

Tomorrow, going to travel out with Vicky. She has to take some responsibilities. How could you ask others whether he's single without letting me know?